CAMPUS DE REIMS

7-9 September 2017

Reims, France

The partner institutions of the European Summer School on Cold War History are jointly convening the 9th edition of the School in the SciencesPo Campus of Reims, in northeast France, on 7-9 September 2016.

The Summer School is a unique conference specifically designed for PhD students and early career researchers to discuss the history of the Cold War.

The School consists of workshops and panel sessions focused on submitted research papers, debates on historiographical and methodology, as well as practical sessions on publishing and academic careers. The school offers an informal atmosphere in which new ideas and research directions can be shared and debated, be it in panel sessions, or over coffee and meals.

The school has a very high student to faculty ratio (2:1) allowing participants to have in depth discussions about their research with established scholars in the field. The faculty includes prominent scholars, among others:

Mario Del Pero (Sciences Po, Paris)

Michele Di Donato (SciencesPo, Paris)

Tanya Harmer (LSE)

Eirini Karamouzi (University of Sheffield)

Sara Lorenzini (Università di Trento)

Application Guidance

PhD students and early career researchers (no more than three years from PhD completion) are invited to submit proposals. We encourage submissions on any aspect of the Cold War, broadly defined. Of particular interest are papers that make use of newly available primary sources and innovative methodologies. Papers should not exceed 7,000 words (including citations in Chicago style). At the School, each participant will give a 15-minute presentation (in English) followed by discussion with the faculty and students. The best paper will be recommended for publication in the journal “Cold War History” (subject to the normal review process).

Applicants should submit a 300 word abstract and a brief academic CV (in a single PDF document and in English, with the file titled as your surname. The CV must make clear the applicants' nationality and stage of PhD or research). Please send these to coldwarsummerschool@gmail.com by 30 April 2017. Please note in the subject line of your email "CW Summer School 2017-YourLastName". Please note that preference is given to those who have not previously attended.

Please note that there is a 200 euro registration fee, which will cover accommodation and meals for the duration of the conference.
